EXPLORE SUMMER CLASSES AT CREATIVE ARTS WORKSHOP

New Haven, CT – Pastels and paper. Clay and copper. These materials represent just a sampling of what you could explore in an art class this summer. Whether you are a beginning or experienced artist, consider taking a summer class at Creative Arts Workshop (CAW) to enrich your skills and learn new techniques.

Enrollment is underway for the summer term, which runs June 26 through Aug 27, and includes both courses and workshops. New adult courses include Experimental Printing, which explores new techniques in digital printing and Master Class in Outdoor Painting, which explains the unique rewards and challenges to painting outside. The summer program for young people, Adventures in Art, (ages 4 to 17) offers one- and two-week courses. After Care is available daily until 5:30 pm for all ages with outdoor recreation, snack, and additional games and art projects.

Also don't miss Open Enrollment – your chance to explore classes for free July 3-7. Visit classes, meet our dedicated students and world-class faculty, and explore different departments. No pre-registration or fees are needed. (Note: CAW will be closed on July 4. Only full-term classes that meet during the designated days are eligible for open enrollment, which excludes classes that start later in the term and all workshops.)

CAW is located at 80 Audubon St. in New Haven. Complete course information is available online at CreativeArtsWorkshop.org or through the brochure, which can be picked up or mailed. Registration can be done online, in person, or by phone. A payment plan is available through June 30.
